Life Story

August 02, 1977 - March 27, 2019

Cassie Eugenia Harris was born August 02, 1977 in Williamsburg, VA to John L. and Janette Fulton. She was the fourth of six siblings. She was preceded in death by her father, John L. Fulton. Cassie is survived by: her husband, Henry; two daughters: Briana and Naomi; her mother, Janette Fulton; five siblings: Sonitha Ghoston, LaShungra Lewis, Connie Dixon, Jonathan Fulton and Carla Fulton; as well as a host of other relatives and friends.

Cassie married the love of her life, Henry Harris on March 23, 1995. During this union she bore into the world her pride and joy; her two beautiful daughters Briana and Naomi. At a young age she developed a fire, grit and determination to succeed in all her endeavors. She accomplished her dream of becoming a Legal Secretary when she joined a law practice in Center City Philadelphia with one of the most prestigious law firms, "Feldman Shepherd" and remained there for twenty years. Wanting to realize all her dreams she decided to pursue a new career path by becoming a business owner as a Daycare Provider. Anyone who intimately knew Cassie understood that her passion and love was for her family, this included special people whom she adopted.

Cassie was quite the gourmet cook and loved sitting down for dinner with her family. Two of her favorite things were education and travel. She was not afraid to explore and experience new things in life. She was very passionate regarding the concept of right and wrong and was not afraid to voice her opinion when she believed something wasn't right. Cassie was fearless and fashionable and was often referred to as the "Five-foot one, ball of fire."

Cassie dedicated her life to Jehovah because she loved the principles of Jehovah and how he knew the deep things in one's heart...how he can see the things that no one else can. She felt comfortable with him, knowing she did not have the answers to man, but Almighty God did as brought out in Romans 14:12 ("so then each one of us will render and account... to God") She instilled these principles in her children at a young age.

Cassie was a very giving person and gave so much of herself asking for nothing in return. She will always be remembered for loving so hard. Her generous spirit has forever endeared her to the hearts of many.
